

Wednesday thoughts

Man A “no such thing as a miracle today – they’re only in a Bible”

Man B “take a look at the head of a daisy? That’s a flippin’ miracle”

Very vaguely they were the words of an overheard conversation some years ago.

The story of Peter’s miraculous escape in Acts 12:6 has brought that memory to mind and how very wrong in his thinking that Man A was.

Each and every day of our lives we are surrounded by miracles if we bother to take time to look and observe. Apart from the countless and recognized miracles of nature and all its wonders and marvels it has become doubly true during the world’s sorry circumstances right at this moment. There is no call to spell them out. We have heard and seen them on our radios and televisions.

Here's another tale to reinforce the belief that miracles abound – a very learned scientist and God were having a chat

Scientist: with all the knowledge you’ve given us God I think I can safely say that today we are now able to create a man”

God : “Okay – show me”

The scientist bends down and picks up a handful of dust.

God “Oh no. Put that down. That’s not right – that’s mine. First of all you will need to create your own dust”